MouthPower: the signature oral health program of the National Museum of Dentistry and latest in a series of successful nationwide traveling exhibitions created to teach about the importance of good oral health to a healthy life.

IDEAL for children in grades K–3 (ages 5–8) MouthPower is an interactive oral health education program that motivates young people to make healthy lifestyle choices. “Mouthie” the chatter teeth mascot guides children through a series of modular learning stations to discover the power of a healthy smile.

They can brush their teeth on a larger-than-life mouth, play dentist in a child-size dental chair and clinic coats, learn the dangers of tobacco, explore the parts of a tooth, and more at MouthPower

An Affiliate of the Smithsonian Institution, this is a one-of-a-kind exhibit made possible by a grant from Colgate-Palmolive. The Alaska tour made possible by Rasmuson Foundation and Southcentral Foundation.

MOUTHPower EXHIBIT

June 1st to August 30th

Anchorage Museum at Rasmuson

MOUTHIE HELPS KIDS!

Build a Tooth: Build a tooth by turning colorful overlay pages in a tooth-shaped book

Let's Brush and Floss: Practice brushing and flossing on an oversize mouth with king-size brush and floss.

Say No to Smoking: "Put out" the cigarettes to learn about the risks of smoking.

Tobacco = Tooth Trouble: Move a smile along a visual timeline to discover what tobacco use can do to a healthy mouth.

Start Your Food Adventure: Begin a lifetime of healthy eating with smart food choices from the new food pyramid.

Let's Eat! Let's Move! Explore how portion size and exercise builds a healthy body.

Join the Dental Team: Don clinic coats and become members of the dental team (dentist, patient, hygienist, and assistant) in a child-size dental office complete with chair and x-rays.

Play the MouthPower® Game: Explore an interactive computer version of the exhibition.
